

MAN IS KILLED; GIRL, 16, HURT, IN AUTO CRASHES

John E. Kehoe, 25, of Phila.,
Fatally Injured on Lincoln
Highway near Langhorne

RUNS INTO SNOWPLOW

Doylestown High School Girl Critically Injured When
Run Down by Car

One man was killed, a high school girl critically injured and four others hurt in three automobile accidents attributed to the storm early last evening. Two of the crashes occurred on the Lincoln Highway near Langhorne while the third was at Doylestown on the Lackawanna trail.

The dead:
John Edward Kehoe, 25, 2225 West Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia.

Critically injured:
Miss Elizabeth Mueller, 16, Doylestown High School girl.

Miss Mueller accompanied by her sister and a boy friend, was walking along the Lackawanna trail, last night, when an automobile driven by Monroe Bergey, Plumsteadville, struck her.

The injured girl was rushed to the Abington Memorial hospital where it was found that she was critically injured and had sustained a compound fracture of the skull.

Bergey was placed under arrest and later released under $2500 bail to await the outcome of the girl's injuries.

When an automobile in which he was riding crashed into the rear of a snowplow, on the Lincoln Highway, near Langhorne, early last evening, John Edward Kehoe, 25 years old, of 2225 West Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia, received a compound fracture of the skull, which resulted in his death at the Byberry Hospital.

State Highway Patrolmen Koons and Pezzent, who investigated, stated that Wilhelm Knauer, of 8028 Frankford Avenue, Philadelphia, driver of the car in which Kehoe was riding, failed to see the plow because of the driving snow. They arrested him pending a coroner's inquest today.

Powers Vandegrift, of Langhorne, operator of the plow, told the officers that he was proceeding slowly when his vehicle was bumped from the rear. He stopped and with Knauer extricated Kehoe from the wrecked car. Passing motorists took the victim to the hospital, where he died shortly after 9 o'clock.

In a second accident, due to the snowfall, which occurred about three miles from Langhorne on the Lincoln Highway yesterday afternoon, four persons were injured, none of them seriously.

Attempting to pass a small sedan, Charles Williams, 1826 Wallace Avenue, Philadelphia, driving a truck of the Keebler Baking Company, Philadelphia, sideswiped a bus owned by the Breyer Ice Cream Company, of Philadelphia, and driven by Thomas M. Hall, 2553 West Seltzer Street, of that same city.

Although the Breyer bus was hit only four of the occupants, including the driver, received injuries. All were able to proceed after receiving first aid treatment for bruises and shock. Neither of the two vehicles was badly damaged. Highway patrolmen from the Langhorne Station investigated.

PARKLAND

W. Rogers Watson made a business trip to Philadelphia on Thursday.

Miss Mabel Weaver has been ill with a severe cold for the past several days. Fred Stegner, Jr., is now home from the hospital where he was confined for sometime due to his recent accident.

Mr. F. Pierson, Sr., enjoyed one of the latest moving pictures when he was in Philadelphia on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeBridga have moved to Hattboro, Pa.

Elizabeth Lake played with the Langhorne High School basketball team in their recent game here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holt are improving their home on Avenue "D" by the addition of a large pantry.

Roy Brown is slowly recovering from injuries received recently when he was struck by an automobile. The accident occurred in Philadelphia, where Roy now resides.

Paul Wright and friend spent the week-end with Paul's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wittenburg visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rémick, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Groth were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers Watson on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hand spent the week-end at the home of Mr. Hand's parents at Ewing, N. J.

Mrs. I. Heckroth, who with Mr. Heckroth, has been staying with their daughter in Philadelphia, is confined to bed on account of the dislocation of her knee-cap.

Neshaminy Creek, above Mount Misery, is frozen, and the skaters of this community are certainly enjoying the first skating on the Creek for quite a long time.

American Beauties Hailed in Plymouth

As the statesmen of the five-power naval conference gathered in London to discuss the naval limitation, the American delegation, accompanied by their secretaries and stenographers, took Plymouth by storm with their beauty and fashionable attire. This is the first picture taken of the secretaries and stenographers on their arrival in England.

CHRYSLER PROUD OF WHAT MAMMOTH STRUCTURE REPRESENTS; BELIEVES NEW SKYSCRAPER IS A SYMBOL OF ACHIEVEMENT IN AMERICAN INDUSTRY

"I Got A Thrill Watching This Building Go Up; It Was Inspiring," Says Head of Motor Corporation in Talking About His Latest Gigantic Achievement

(Editor's Note—This is the second of two articles based on an exclusive interview with Walter P. Chrysler, prominent American motor car manufacturer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—"I got a thrill watching this building go up, floor after floor. It was inspiring."

Walter P. Chrysler, multi-millionaire head of the Chrysler Motor Corporation, made these remarks in an interview today as he discussed his latest achievement—the erection of the Chrysler Building, tallest skyscraper in the world. It is seventy-eight stories high, dwarfing the fifty-six story Woolworth Building, and is even higher than the Eiffel Tower in Paris. It represents a $15,000,000 investment on Mr. Chrysler's part and is located in the heart of New York, near the Grand Central Station.

"I've stood on the sidewalk across the street day after day watching this building go up and to say it thrilled me is putting it lightly," said Mr. Chrysler, a tinge of pride in his voice.

The towering structure which pierces the clouds high over the busiest metropolis in the world stands as a silent tribute to this man who rose to his present eminent position from an errand boy in a grocery store at Ellis, Kansas.

Chrysler was not so proud of his own account as he was over what the mammoth structure represents. He had in his visionary way believed it was inevitable that New York would have a building that would stand as a symbol of what has been achieved in American industry, and that is what he believes the Chrysler skyscraper is. "It is a credit to craftsmanship," said Chrysler, who was once a mechanic himself. He personally congratulated the laborers who built it, as "worker to worker."

Chrysler himself always has been an indefatigable worker. And still is. The son of a locomotive engineer, he left school at the age of seventeen and became a machinist's apprentice in the Union Pacific shops at Ellis, Kansas. Later he worked as a mechanic in various other railroad shops.

At thirty-three he was appointed superintendent of motive power of the Chicago and Great Western, the youngest man ever to hold such a position. He was then "boss" of ten thousand men. His subsequent rise (Continued on Page Four)

CORNWELLS MAN ROBBED; RECOVERS AUTO LATER

George H. Thomas is Hurlled
Into Snowdrift By Three Men

ONE MAN IS CAUGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—(INS)—A wild chase through the city streets ended early today when police captured one of the three bandit suspects who kidnapped a Cornwells Heights motorist, stole his car and dumped him out in a snowdrift here last night.

The suspect gave his name as Albert Moore, 29, of South American street. He was held on charges of thefts of two automobiles and as a suspicious character while police are attempting to learn the names of his two companions.

The kidnapped motorist, George H. Thomas, was approached about 8.30 p. m. near the center of the city by three men with caps pulled down low over their eyes. "What street is this?" they asked.

When Thomas turned to reply he found himself confronted with a pistol.

"Get back in that car and don't make any noise," one of the trio ordered.

Thomas was forced to drive his expensive sedan to Swanson and Bainbridge street where the men took his watch and $3 in money. Hurling him into a snow drift one of the men shouted:

"You'll find your car on Walnut street between Seventh and Tenth."

The Bucks County motorist immediately reported his experience to the police, and police found the car parked where the kidnappers had promised.

Next Games
Shamrocks vs. Fighting Five.
Whoopies vs. Gypsies.

In the final game of the first half the Shamrocks last evening defeated the Whoopies 25 to 13 and thus clinched second position in the A. O. H. League race.

"Angie" McCafferty, Shamrock forward, seems to have at last found his eye as he last night again led the Pats in scoring, ringing in four two-pointers.

The game scheduled for last evening between the Arrows and Gypsies was cancelled as will also be the two remaining games of this half.

As it will not be possible for any of the other teams to oust the Gypsies from first place, it was decided by the directors of the league to cancel the remaining games of the first half and start the second half on February 4th, when the Gypsies will open with the Whoopies and the Shamrocks will take on the Fighting Five. The Arrows will remain idle until Thursday, Feb. 6th, when they will open with the Fighting Five.

Scouts of Troop No. 1 Hold Interesting Meeting

The scouts of Troop No. 1 held a weekly meeting on Friday night. The troop was visited by Deputy-Commissioner Burtonwood. There was an added attraction in the person of an old fisherman who gave the boys some pointers in the art of knot-tying.

The boys of this troop are exceptionally busy just now making preparations for an exhibit to be held in the near future.

This exhibit will include scout handicraft, and nature specimens, along with other articles of interest to the public in general.

On Thursday evening, February 6, the boys of Troop No. 4 from the Wood Street Presbyterian Church, will visit Troop No. 1.

FRANCIS LEFFERTS IS FETED ON BIRTHDAY

Pleasant Social Affair Takes Place at The Travel
Club Home

BUFFET SUPPER SERVED

The Travel Club Home on Cedar street was the scene of a brilliant social affair last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lefferts, 214 Mulberry street, were hosts to a large number of young people in honor of the 21st birthday of their son, Francis Lefferts.

The "home" was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns which made a pleasing background for the many vari-colored evening gowns of the ladies, and the conventional black full dress of the men. An orchestra under the direction of Edward Clark from the Langhorne Farms on the Lincoln Highway, furnished music for dancing from 8.30 to 1 o'clock.

Prizes were given for the spot dance and the lucky number dance, and were awarded to Miss Florence Fox and Miss Mary Yost, of Philadelphia, and Marvin McEuen and Mitchell Ancker, of Bristol.

A delicious buffet supper was served at midnight.

During the evening Francis was presented with a beautiful brown Gladstone bag, the gift of a number of his friends, and was the recipient of many individual gifts.

Those who were present at this delightful affair were:

Misses Reba Miller, Zoe Gould, Sara Milnor, Margaret Pope, Florence Pierce, Henrietta Davis, Winifred Tracy, Helen Stewart, Florence McIlhenny, Roberta Pearson, Helen Taylor.

Dr. Henry Bisbee, Percy Earl, John Smoyer, 3rd, John Black, William Hardy, Mitchell Ancker, Harry Hanford, Joseph McVaine, Leslie Strumfels, Marvin McEuen, Robert D. Brooks, Kempton Haines, Theodore Hanson, Francis Lefferts, Roy Fry.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wenzel, Mr. and Mrs. William Sharkey, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Helwig, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Weagley, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Lefferts, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lefferts, of Bristol; Miss Mary Yost, Miss Florence Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Ancker, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hollander, Lewis Palmier, of Philadelphia; Miss Edna Prosser, Miss Alma Copestake, Miss Helen Harrison, Casper Grovatt, of Trenton; Thomas Perkins, of Beverly, N. J.; Dr. and Mrs. Horace Fleckenstein and son Carmen, of Newportville; Mr. and Mrs. Lanson, of Newportville.

OPERATED ON

Thomas Goslin, of Linden street, was operated upon last night at the Harriman Hospital, having his appendix removed.

BRISTOL MAN IS HAULED BEFORE COURT BY WIFE

William Bilger, 33, Charged
By Wife With Desertion
And Non-Support

TO TRY IT ONCE MORE

Man Admits He Frequents
Gambling House And Makes Bets

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 28.—Separated three times because of domestic infelicitude, William Bilger, thirty-three, of Bristol, son of a South Lancaster justice of the peace, appeared in court yesterday before Judge Hiram H. Keller as a defendant. He was arrested by his wife, Mrs. Mary Bilger, charged with desertion and non-support of his wife and one child.

Pending the execution of a proposed agreement to "get together and try it again," Judge Keller continued the case until March 24.

Bilger testified that he has been out of work since January 4; that he was making $18 when he was laid off. He denied that he threw her clothes out of the house and ordered her out. Bilger said that his wife has thrown alarm clocks at him.

Under cross-examination Bilger admitted that he did frequent a Bristol gambling house once in a while but that he never lost any money. He told the court that he did lose twice when he bet $5 on one occasion and $10 on another, on a horse race.

"I want my wife to come back to me, and I'll provide a home for her," Bilger testified. Mrs. Bilger said that she did not feel like going back to him under the circumstances.

Called as a witness, Daniel H. Bilger, father of the defendant testified there was absolutely no reason for a non-support order to have been brought in this case under any circumstances.

Judge Keller continued the case of Florence Cole and Edith Roehen, of Trevoze, charged with non-support of an aged parent, until February 17th. The case of the Commonwealth against John J. Boyle, of Bristol, was also continued until Feb. 24. Boyle was charged with deserting his wife and failing to support her. It was testified that he makes $223 a month, which includes a pension that he receives from the United States Navy. Boyle left his wife in Frankford in December, 1928. Both were willing to go back and live with each other and Judge Keller gave Boyle several weeks in which to secure another home for his wife.

John Keller, of Bristol, who was arrested in Chester recently, was before the court on a charge of desertion and non-support of his wife and three small children. It was testified that he has given his wife but $15 since he left her some months ago. Keller told the court that the reason he left was because his wife's folks were continuously interfering with their home life. Keller said he was willing to take his wife back and to provide a home for her as soon as he could get a job in Bristol.

J. Stewart Wisler, of Perkasio, who was arrested during a raid on the Neshaminy Hotel recently was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Keller after pleading guilty to a charge of possessing liquor.

John L. Ross, of Morrisville, was directed to pay his wife $8 a week toward her support. Mrs. May Ross, the defendant's wife, is blind.

Judge Keller yesterday granted a divorce to Mary Gardner, of Edison, from her husband, George Gardner, of Wisconsin, on grounds of desertion.

DR. J. FRED WAGNER TESTIFIES IN FAVOR OF NEW BUS ROUTE HERE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—(INS)—Dr. J. Fred Wagner, president of Bristol Borough Council, took the stand today at a hearing before a deputy public service commissioner here, and testified in favor of the petition by the Pennsylvania General Transit Company, which seeks to operate a bus line between Morrisville and Philadelphia with intermediate stops.

Decision was reserved on the petition after two hours devoted to taking of testimony both for and against the proposed line.

Dr. Wagner asserted that the main business section of Bristol located several blocks from the Pennsylvania Railroad station would be greatly benefitted by the proposed bus line. Other residents living in the neighborhood to be intersected by the bus line also favored granting of the bus company's petition.

JAYWALKERS

The police department of New York City is empowered by the city charter to regulate vehicular traffic. To what extent it may regulate pedestrian traffic has not been finally decided by the courts. Police Commissioner Whalen claims the power to absolutely control pedestrians in their use of the streets by the exercise of "spontaneous" police power—whatever that may mean; and probably the courts will have to decide, sooner or later, whether the power to regulate vehicles includes the power to regulate pedestrians.

Why the question was not settled long ago is difficult to explain. It has been raised time and time again in every city, town and hamlet and a court decision would be more far-reaching importance than many other court rulings. No doubt the troubles, strife and tribulations, that would beset the police department which essayed to place pedestrian traffic under the same restrictions and rules to which vehicular traffic is subject, have something to do with it.

While the inconsistencies and discriminations of the law may forbid it, reason, equality and public safety demand more strict control of pedestrian traffic. Motor cars and trucks must go, stop, turn and back-up when and where the police will it. Compared to the free-moving pedestrian, the driver is a slave.

The police have a way to prevent vehicular traffic from "hogging" public thoroughfares. There should be a way for them to prevent the pedestrian from "jaywalking" and usurping what few rights remain for the driver.

PERJURY

One of the most difficult reconciliations which confronts the court is the effort to protect the reputation of individuals, business enterprises and even corporations, and yet allow that freedom from constraint which is essential in judicial proceedings.

It is deemed of prime importance that witnesses, litigants and lawyers should be allowed broad privilege in respect to what they say in court.

So long as the allegation of testimony is material and is legal, relevant to the case it is immaterial to any question of civil liability for it, whether it is true or false, malicious or without intent to injure.

The object of the rule, needless to say, is not to condone falsehood or to confer immunity upon a calumniator. It is that public policy requires the litigants should plead and witnesses should testify without that reserve which would result from a fear of suits for libel or slander. Not to throw up this barrier for the protection of witnesses would amount to a censorship of testimony that would defeat the very ends of justice.

This discussion answers the frequent criticism of judges for overlooking testimony that is manifestly perjured. They are more concerned with getting all material facts before the jury than with keeping perjured testimony out of the case. While perjury is heinous and warrants severe punishment it seldom accomplishes its object designs.

Some homes have many closets and some don't accumulate so much junk.

TULLYTOWN

A great improvement has been made by the Pennsylvania Railroad in placing lights on the steps of the new bridge which spans the railroad just west of the passenger station. The lights were very badly needed, as these steps were in such a dark place that any stranger coming into town would have had a time finding them. The railroad company has placed two lights on the steps of the west side, and two lights on the steps of the east side. One additional light has been placed near the steps on the eastbound side. The commuters are very thankful that these lights were put up.

The Tullytown A. C. will play the strong Emille five in their hall on Tuesday evening. A large crowd is expected to attend this game, as the Tullytown and Emille boys always put up a good battle when they get together. A good game is also scheduled for the Reserves.

Rev. and Mrs. C. Clyde Levergood and family of the Methodist parsonage have been spending a few days at the guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Levergood, of East Lanesdowne.

Paul E. White, Jr., of Oxford avenue, has been spending the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rue, of Fallsington.

Mr. and Mrs. Odis Harrington and niece, were visitors with friends in town, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lovett and family, and Mrs. Ida Wright were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wright, of Main street, Sunday.

Miss Alvia Atkinson and Miss Marion Wells, of Main street, and Frank Reed, of the Mill Creek Road, were visitors with friends near Bethlehem, Pa., Sunday.

The chicken supper which was held in the social room of the Tullytown M. E. Church on Thursday evening was well attended and a success. This supper was given under auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

The Misses Eliza and Ida Kissinger and Walter S. Johnson, of Bristol, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher A. Johnson, of Main street, Sunday.

Miss Marion Wells, of Main street, was a visitor at the home of Miss Mary Worst, of Penn's Manor, Friday.

Adults, too, prefer "NO DOSING" for COLDS

When Vicks introduced the better method of treating colds externally it was especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids "dosing," which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

Each year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Just rubbed on, Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled, and, at the same time, acts through the skinlike a plaster.

SYNOPSIS
Joe Lane, ex-pugilist, now star singer at QRS A Radio Station, learns that Arthur Phillips, his manager and best friend, is trying to get Katherine, his wife, away from him. The two men fight. Joe hits Phillips and is falling the manager strikes his head on the curbstone. Joe is being tried for the murder of Phillips, but thus far no evidence has been introduced that Joe premeditated murder. The singer on the witness stand tells of Phillips' interest in his wife, and Katherine and Little Pal, the Lane's baby, sit at the counsel table encouraging Joe, while the magistrate is questioning him about his attitude towards Phillips.

CHAPTER IX—Continued
"Never! I am careless about my personal finances and I frequently borrowed various sums from Mr. Phillips which he deducted from my salary and royalties." Joe's answer came with disarming frankness and he looked the judge straight in the face. "There wasn't any friction about that between us. He made me in my profession. All that I became was through his assistance. He put me at the top, and I felt nothing but the greatest gratitude for him. I always thought of him as my best friend."

"Mr. Lane, before I ask you the next question I want to remind you once more that under the Constitution of the United States you may at any time refuse to answer a question which you feel might tend to incriminate or degrade you. This is a right guaranteed you by the organic law of the country and you may avail yourself of it whenever you see fit."

"Now, then, were you for any reason angry with the deceased at the time you left your house to enter his automobile on the night of his death?"

Again Joe hesitated. This was the question he had expected. His lawyers had told him it would be asked. He was to answer as they had coached him—telling a story that approximated the truth and still would not place him in a bad light. He glanced again towards Katherine and Little Pal. His wife was watching him now anxiously.

"Muvver," came the clear, childish tones of Little Pal, "Daddy was awful mad, wasn't he?"

A look of anguish crossed Joe's face. Katherine, horror-stricken, caught the child more closely to her. "Keep quiet, Junior," she said quickly.

But no one could help hearing the baby's voice—let alone the magistrate. Still, the look that he bent upon the child was kindly and his tones were casual.

"You say your father was awfully mad," he asked the boy.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Man, he was," Junior replied brightly. "He told muvver so, didn't he, muvver?"

In that one fleeting moment Katherine and Joe saw their whole defense crumbling to pieces in the tiny hands of their own Little Pal.

"Mrs. Lane, will you bring your son up here to me?"

Katherine nodded dumbly, trembling so that she could scarcely rise to her feet. With faltering feet she managed to walk that short distance between the counsel table and the judge's bench, her hands clutching Little Pal's.

The magistrate picked the boy up in his arms and sat him down upon the edge of his massive mahogany desk.

"Now don't you be afraid, son," the gray-haired man said gently, "because I know lots of nice little boys like you, and I know that they all tell the truth."

"Oh, I'm not afraid," Junior shook his head. "I like you."

"Well, that's fine. Now, do you know what a lie is?"

"Yes, sir. It's a stoway, and it makes my daddy and my muvver re-wy sad when I tell one."

"Then, Little Man, will you promise me that you will answer truthfully the questions I am going to ask you now?"

A spasm of pain crossed Joe's face. The collapse of his defense was inevitable, and he realized what it meant, and yet wracked as he was by this mental torture he could not resist smiling wanly and addressing the magistrate.

"Don't worry, your honor," he said proudly; "he'll tell you the truth. He never lies."

The magistrate turned to Joe, his face grave. "That's a real credit to both you and Mrs. Lane. I congratulate you upon your son." Then to Junior: "Where were you when your mother and father were talking, son?"

"Right there wit them, Mister."

"Did you hear what they were saying?"

"Sure, I did hear them." Little Pal nodded, his face serious.

"You didn't hear anything, Junior?" Katherine, her lips pressed tightly together until they seemed one thin, scarlet line across her pallid face, made a last effort to save the situation.

"The baby turned his big eyes on his mother. 'Why, yes, I did, Muvver,' he insisted, a look of surprise on his chubby little countenance. 'And didn't you always told me to tell the truth?'"

"Please don't interfere, Mrs. Lane," the judge rebuked Katherine. "You do your own child an injustice by attempting to get him to twist or suppress his story." Once more he looked at the child.

"Now, Little Man, did you hear your daddy say anything about Mr. Phillips?"

Very proudly the child straightened up. He looked at his astonished father, still and silent in the witness chair. "Yes, sir," he nodded, his voice emphatic. "Daddy said he was going to kill that dead!"

If a thunderbolt had inexplicably been shot from between those full, puckered lips at Joe Lane, it could not have injured him more than those few words. They placed an entirely different complexion on the killing. It could no longer be assumed that the song plugger had struck the blow in self defense, even though Phillips had used a wrench. It seemed now that Phillips himself was the one who had been defending himself from a man who had threatened to take his life. Joe held tightly to the arms of his chair to keep from slipping down—and down—and down—

Katherine was choking. She felt that she could bear little more of this. It was impossible to stand there and listen to the child building up a case against his own father, so unknowing, so innocent of any harm. She stretched her arms out towards the baby, but the magistrate waved her aside gently.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Lane," he shook his head, "but I must ask the boy just a few more questions. Now, son, is your daddy a good fighter?"

"You bet," the child enthused. "He was a big prize fighter, wasn't you, Daddy?" He looked at his father for confirmation.

"Yes, son I was," Joe answered quietly.

The song plugger's voice was that of a man who has suddenly grown very tired and old. His face had a grey, ashen hue about it, and his cheeks looked pinched. Something about Joe's appearance caught Little Pal's attention. He glanced from his father to his mother. Something terrible had happened, but he didn't know what it was. His face puckered up as though he were about to cry. The tears came into his eyes.

"There, there, now," the magistrate patted the child's hand, noting the disturbance evidently created in his mind. "You're a fine, upright little man, and I want to thank you for being such a good and truthful boy."

"You're welcome, Mister Man," he added. "Please, I want to go home wit my daddy."

The magistrate seemed to have got something in his eye all at a sudden. He patted his handkerchief vigorously for a moment, and then lifted Little Pal down from his desk, turning him over to Katherine who took the baby and went back to her seat at the counsel table. The judge addressed himself to the courtroom and in the silence his voice sounded heavy and booming.

"The court has heard the testimony of this child. According to the rules of evidence a man may be sworn and permitted to testify if questioning shows that the child is aware of the difference between truth and falsehood and understands the nature of an oath. It is our belief that the defendant's son is a child of the highest intelligence and integrity. Therefore, it behooves us to give weight to the important evidence he has brought forth. He has shown that his father left to meet the deceased in a rage, and that he had made a statement to the effect that he would kill him."

"KONJOLA ENDED MY VAIN SEARCH FOR NEW HEALTH"

New Medicine Brings High Praise From Man Who Had Been ill for Years

MR. JACOB BECHTOLD
"For a long time before taking Konjola I had been a very sick man," said Mr. Jacob Bechtold, 121 Chestnut street, Lancaster, Pa. "I never ate a meal that I did not suffer intense pain from accumulated gases in my stomach. I was often short of breath and dizzy. Constipation troubled me constantly and natural healthy sleep was unknown in my experience."

"I had used many medicines but none helped. This new medicine, Konjola, was the first to work for me. In a few weeks my stomach was back in excellent condition and I never suffered from gas pains. Constipation is a thing of the past for me and I sleep as well as I did as a boy. I am in excellent health today and I do not hesitate to give all credit to this great new medicine, Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

DIRTY APPEARANCE OF LONDON IMPRESSES GIRL

Vernita Bronson Says That English Girls Lack Individuality

ALL MOVE SLOWLY

By Vernita Bronson

Stenographer in the U. S. State Department, now in London with American delegation to five-power naval conference.

(Copyright 1930 by International News Service)

LONDON, Jan. 28.—This thing called London needs a spring cleaning! About the first thing was the dirty look which all the buildings have. They look as if they had never seen a cleaning. But, I guess, it is the weather, and because they are so old, anyway.

After the cleanliness of our own Washington, almost any place would look dirty.

Somebody has said that all Englishmen are good looking—more attractive than our American boys. Well, I haven't seen any of them yet.

The Englishmen I have seen start looking saggy from the pants up. But I guess they don't try to look like sheiks.

However, there is one thing that can be said for them. They sure are polite, and they treat you like a lady. Most of our boys treat you with the nonchalance that they would treat their sisters. You know, the American boy has almost completely forgotten that a girl still believes in romance and wants to be flattered about her looks. When they do start getting romantic most of them are so amateurish you want to giggle at them.

As for the English girls, they seem to lack individualism. I have seen a number of pretty English girls, but they were not attractively dressed. In fact, their clothes look as if they were as standardized as the tin lizzie. Why, when we first arrived here all the newspapers said we dressed like film stars. I wish we could make ourselves believe that.

I think what strikes me most over here is the slowness of things. In the restaurants or hotels they take an age to get your meals for you. Everything seems to move very slowly. Why, if you do move in a hurry everybody stops and stares at you. The other day, for instance, when I rushed up Piccadilly circus because I was in a hurry to meet a girl friend, everybody on the street looked at me as though they thought I had gone mad.

CROYDON MANOR

A card party was held on Saturday evening in St. Thomas Aquinas Church hall for the benefit of the new school which will be completed about February 1st, 1930. The party was attended by about 300 people, 100 coming by bus from Philadelphia. Pinochle, "500", bridge and euchre were played. 200 prizes were awarded. A number of articles were given away. Refreshments were offered for sale.

A meeting was held on Sunday by the women of St. Thomas Aquinas parish to make preparations for a supper to be held for the benefit of the new school. Date will be announced later.

FALLSINGTON

Mrs. Caroline Watson, of Merion, was a Tuesday visitor at her aunt's, Mrs. Rebecca Richards.

Mrs. Harry Watson, Mrs. Louis Carter and Misses Jennie and Lily Moon, Mrs. Francis Smith, attended the tea given in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith by Mrs. Elizabeth Landis on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home in Morrisville.

PARKLAND

Mrs. E. Twining, now of South Langhorne, recently leased her home on Avenue "A" to Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clark, of Wilmington, Delaware.

Harry Beck was visiting his numerous friends here on Saturday evening.

HULMEVILLE

A Valentine party is being planned by American Legion Auxiliary of Jesse W. Soby Post for the evening of February 12th, at the Memorial House, Langhorne.

MONONGAHELA, Jan. 28.—(INS)—Add to the "meanest man" stories the fellow who recently stole the eleven chickens from a coop owned by a one-armed man in Richesville, near here, a one-armed man who has 14 children to support.

Frank Lutes, the victim, philosophically wrote a letter to a newspaper.

His Fistic Prowess Brings Him Fame

after the theft in which he promised the "meanest man" the key to the lock on the coop which the thief had looted.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 28.—(INS)—Smith R. Johnson, 87, of Amwell Township, one of the oldest disciples of Isaac Walton in the county, is the first person in Washington County to take out his 1930 fishing license.

Johnson's home is near Lone Pine and he is credited with having pulled more "big uns" out of the streams in this district than any other lover of the sport.

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walhail

THE movies might be more instructive. Scores of films have "Love" in their titles but none of them explain how folks get that way.

Billie Dove has made "Her Private Life" the subject of a talkie.

"Playthings of Broadway" duplicate the toys of Main Street if we are to believe the night club scenes we see in the movies.

It's hard to believe, but "The Sins of the World" provided only enough plot for one picture.

Marion Byron, "The Busby" seems to be another attractive field for the bootlegger.

They Will Converse

"Dumb-Bells in Ermine" may be beautiful but they will certainly not be dumb when they come to the screen in Warner Bros. new talkie of that title.

"The Way of All Flesh" would seem, eventually, to lead to dieting.

Fence-Rail Talkies

Farmer Silo says: "My boy in college wears only a hair-line moustache in spite of my telling him a full set of whiskers is mighty entertaining."

"The Right to Life" seems to be vested in so many people that none can claim the exclusive.

For "Double Feature" Day

"When Doctors Disagree" "You Don't Know Your Luck"

Facts Based on Fiction

Richard Barthelmess will soon be revealed as "A Son of the Gods."

Marion Byron acts as first aid to Charlotte Greenwood in "So Long Letty."

"The Green Goddess" is brought from stage to screen with George Arliss starring.

Chrysler Proud of What Huge Structure Represents

In the motor world was meteoric and he stands today as a typical example of the American self-made man.

Chrysler is looking forward optimistically toward 1930. He thinks "The stock market crash can be discounted," said Mr. Chrysler. "There is nothing on the business horizon to change the forward-looking course of the motor car industry."

"Our plans anticipate a return to normal production early in 1930 and a continuation of good business thereafter."

reaction to the stock market decline. Indications are that only a relatively small percentage of the total buying power was adversely affected by the stock market slump."

Business generally—and specially the automobile industry—has been "cleaning house" in the meantime, he said. Overloaded distributing facilities are being relieved of the pressure of stocks on hand and inventories will be a great deal lower by April 1.

"The market for automobile production in 1930 promises to reach a very satisfactory volume, in spite of the record output of motor cars in 1929," he declared.

Mr. Chrysler is fifty-four years old, and has a wife and four children—Walter P. Chrysler, Jr., a freshman at Dartmouth; Jack Chrysler, who is attending Taft Preparatory School; Mrs. Byron C. Fox and Mrs. Edgar Garbisch, bride of the famous football star.

As they approached the car the bluecoats saw three men driving away in an auto that resembled the trio Thomas had described. Motorcycle policeman Shannan and Feeane called on the speeding motorist to halt but they only put on more speed. The officers gave chase. At Sixth street and Washington Square the bandit's car skidded into a tree and the men jumped out and fled. The pursuing bluecoats, however, caught up to Moore.
